

The game is back on -
and going virtual!

The annual UIC Health Tech Jam is a multi-day free event for students from different health professional programs to collaborate and compete! Teams will design and pitch meaningful ideas for health technology grounded in community feedback with help from industry experts, faculty, and innovative educational workshops.

Registration is OPEN!

Collaborate with new disciplines in teams

Team up with UIC students in Rehabilitation Science, Physical Therapy, Biomedical Visualization, and more.

Develop marketable new skills

Work with experts to build novel ideas and professional app pitches based on community-driven data.

Attend unique, ground-breaking workshops

Learn from experts in up to six new workshops in app development, virtual reality, clinical technology, racial healthcare implications, and more.

Compete to win the 2022 Innovation Award

Create the best possible technology pitch and win the coveted 2022 Innovation Award selected by industry experts and faculty.

All participants will earn a Certificate of Achievement in Healthspan Technology upon completion of the event.
